

ABSTRACT

An input memory circuit, which has a plurality of addresses that have an associated plurality of keys, forwarding information, and
5 enable/disable flags, receives a plurality of input cells, extracts key information from each input cell, compares the key information from each input cell with the keys, and outputs forwarding information for an input cell when the key information of the input cell matches a key at an address and the address is enabled.

10